ANCHORED IN GRATITUDE

Tim Sievers

A few years ago, our family faced a difficult time. Feeling abandoned and betrayed by our friends and partners in ministry, we lost everything—jobs, home, and reputation in the community.

In the midst of those difficult days, the words of Philippians 4:6-7 kept coming to me over and over again:

“do not be anxious about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God.” And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

How, in the midst of such anguish could I present my requests to God with thanksgiving? I couldn’t wrap my head around it. The only thing I could do was pray. Never in my life did I pray so often and with such passion as I did then. At times I didn’t even know what to pray, but pray I did.

And God worked in ways we never expected. We put our house on the market, showing it about 20 times in two weeks. We accepted an offer, just 13 days after listing and were able to close in just 28 days! Then we didn’t have a place to live. We prayed for a place to live in our time of transition and that night some friends called and offered their vacation rental for as long as we needed it—for free!

We had no income, but while we waited for direction, friends invited us to dinner and provided financial resources to help us purchase food and pay our bills.

And as the words of the Apostle Paul kept coming to me, even in our struggle, I found myself presenting my requests to Him with thanksgiving. Not thanksgiving for our circumstances but thanksgiving in our circumstances. God changed my heart—he changed me.

And all the while, God was preparing the way for us to move to Palouse, where we were warmly welcomed, loved and supported, and where we continue to serve in ministry alongside of you and deepen our faith.

Last year I embarked on a personal journey to thank people in my life who had been loving and supportive in those difficult days. I challenged myself to spend 30 days in thanksgiving and write 30 notes of thanks. I did that and more.

As Pastor Corey and I discussed how God was working in my life, we agreed that spending some time as a church focusing on gratitude could help us strengthen our connection to each other and to God. And so we embarked on our first Thankfulness Campaign. You offered thousands of reasons that you are thankful and we posted them on our 10,000 Reasons Wall. You sent more than 800 thank you notes to share your gratitude. And together, we gathered on the eve of Thanksgiving to offer our thanks and praise to God. It was a special time in my life, and in the life of our church.

We are embarking on our second Thankfulness Campaign and our theme this year is “Anchored in Gratitude.” As we embark upon our journey, I invite you to join with me in a daily prayer:

Anchor my heart
In thanksgiving to you.
Lord, I give you praise.

May that be the prayer of our hearts in this season of thanksgiving and may our hearts be anchored in gratitude.

I pray you enjoy this edition of our newsletter. Thank you for reading!

STARING AT THE BELLY OF MY HORSE

A STORY OF GRATITUDE

Andi Edwards

"Give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you." 1 Thessalonians 5:18 (ESV)

This verse was not what was going through my mind that brisk October afternoon in 2008 when I suddenly found myself flat on my back, high up a mountain trail, staring up at the belly of my horse. The muddled thoughts going through my head were more along the lines of "wait, I'm supposed to be on my horse, not under him" and "I'm not sure I can move" and "did I say goodbye to Wil and the kids today?"

There was no cell phone service in the thick mountain woods, and a rescue vehicle wouldn't have made it up the steep trail. My riding companions had no choice but to help me crawl back into the saddle, where I tied the reins to my saddle horn and leaned onto my horse's neck, pleading with him to settle down and follow the other horses gently down the 3-mile rocky trail. Being thankful for anything in this circumstance other than still being alive was far from my thoughts as we painfully and slowly navigated the hour-long journey down the mountain.

By the time I reached the emergency room a few hours later, walking was too painful, and my husband carried me in. X-rays revealed no obvious fractures, and I was told to take ibuprofen and that I "would be fine." I was not fine. The first month was spent in quiet suffering. It took three months to be able to put my socks on by myself. A year later things were just getting worse. Back to the doctor I went for more X-rays and an MRI. The ER had missed a fracture in my spine on the day of the accident. My body had tried valiantly to heal it, but in the process new bone had grown around some nerves, trapping them and causing arthritis to set in. I had also managed to severely damage three discs in my spine.

For several months after the diagnosis I sulked. I was angry and resentful that the accident had happened, and that I was stuck like this. I eventually sought out another doctor for help, and he told me that I should get used to it, take it easy, and that I'd never ride horses again. He listed off the things I could never do, including running. I was absolutely disheartened. I read verses like the one above, and didn't understand how I could possibly be thankful for this circumstance. Was this suffering really the will of God? Gratitude wasn't even on my radar.

Eventually I chose to take positive steps toward recovery. It turns out that with prayer and perseverance, I could and would take up running and I did eventually get back on a horse. Recovering from the accident motivated me to run marathons, make healthier food choices, take yoga classes, be more involved with my kids, and truly appreciate being able to do all those active things. I was even able to encourage several friends to start running and eventually run their own races and make healthier choices in their own lives. If the accident had never happened, would I have missed all of these opportunities? It is impossible to know.

"Gratitude, however, is an anchor that helps us hold on through the waves of despair."

What I do know is that I was able to eventually find thankfulness in this circumstance, and that this gratitude has helped me wade through it all. Am I grateful for the accident itself? I can honestly say that I would never want to repeat what happened on the mountain that day, and that I am not grateful for the pain and the suffering that was the result.

What I am grateful for is the way that God took something awful that happened to me in this life and used it to help me find some wonderful things. God didn't cause my suffering, but in the aftermath of disaster, He gave me so many new opportunities for which I am very grateful. Of course this is easy for me to say now. When I was going through the initial accident and recovery, I certainly wasn't feeling that way.

With hindsight being 20/20 and all, it is often easy for us to look back on the tough times and find things to be grateful for, things that we learned or experienced positively in the aftermath of disaster. In the midst of tragedy though, it can be extremely difficult to find gratitude. Gratitude, however, is an anchor that helps us hold on through the waves of despair. Robert Emmons, Ph.D., a leading scientific expert on gratitude says, "In the face of brokenness, gratitude has the power to heal. In the face of despair, gratitude has the power to bring hope."

Dr. Emmons' research shows that choosing gratitude in our daily life can help us become more resilient in the difficult times. Building a foundation of gratitude makes us stronger. We can't - and shouldn't - deny the fact that life will bring us our fair share of disappointments, losses, frustrations, and tragic circumstances, but we can choose to navigate those inevitable obstacles with gratitude as an anchor, helping to keep us grounded.

No one feels grateful that they have lost a job, a home, their health, or a loved one. We don't always feel thankfulness for a circumstance, but we can very often find something to give thanks for in a circumstance. We can choose to trust in God in these times, and consider all of the things we do have to be grateful for, no matter how small they may seem in the face of great tragedy. Using gratitude as an anchor, even in a sea of suffering, allows us to better grab onto those things we are thankful for, and helps us not to be overwhelmed with grief, pain or despair.

Consider spending a little time every day building up your anchor of gratitude, in the good times and in the hard times. Think back on some of the times you may have found yourself "looking up at the belly of your horse." Or perhaps you are there right now, staring up and wondering just how and why you have found yourself in such a difficult place. Can you choose to find gratitude not necessarily for the circumstance, but in the circumstance? A good friend has told me that God wastes nothing, even a difficult experience. He does not cause us to suffer, but He does often use those difficult circumstances to bring us opportunities, connections, and the chance to truly see the things that are most important to us. That is certainly something to be grateful for.

What's the next step in your spiritual journey?

YOUNG LIFE OFFERS THANKS

Our local Young Life Committee wishes to extend our heartfelt thanks for the generous support of local businesses and residents for their sponsorship and donations to our Gar-Pal Young Life Club. Our annual banquet, attended by more than 112 people, nearly $12,000 to support weekly club activities and staff. Funds also will provide scholarships for youth to attend camp at the Washington Family Ranch this summer.

Good News! At our banquet, Mark Sawyer announced that Ben Wilson, who currently is obtaining a degree in Christian Education from Grand Canyon University, is coming on board to launch Wyldlife at the Middle School. Additionally, Beth Parrish, a recent WSU graduate and SEL employee, will take some responsibilities off of Mark's shoulders, specifically weekly club and campaigner activities, therefore allowing him to transition into a role as more of a mentor. Your support of our local club has given us a reputation as one of the best-funded clubs in Washington and now it's allowing us to expand to the Middle School and reach even more youth with the message that God loves them and has a plan for their lives. THANK YOU!

Another huge thank you to volunteer chefs Daniel and Nicole Wegner, who provided a delicious Mexican feast featuring pulled pork carnitas. And thank you to the many volunteers who provided heavenly lime pies. Henry Johnston, our auctioneer, helped attendees have a great time at the auction, which included a piano, a rustic potting bench made by Young Life kids, and some beautiful homemade pies, cakes, lasagna, breads and jams, and crocheted afghans. Local photography, seasonal wreaths, purses, pet supplies and a full catered dinner for 6 were some favorites. Our gratitude goes out to all who donated items to our auction.

The event was underwritten by our generous sponsors:

Big Dream Sponsor | Anytime Fitness Moscow

Bridge Builder Sponsor | McLeod's Palouse Market

READING & UNDERSTANDING GOD'S WORD STARTING POINT Bible

Could you use help understanding how to study the Bible? Are there questions you want to ask about the Bible, but you might be embarrassed to do so in another Bible study? Are you new to the Bible?

If you answered yes to any of those questions, or if you just want a safe place to start learning from the Bible, please consider attending Starting Point, which meets monthly on the first Wednesday around the table in the Fellowship Hall. Our next session is November 1st at 6:30 PM.

If you are interested in Starting Point: Bible, fill out a communication card, call Pastor Corey at (509) 336-9154 or e-mail him: corey@palousechurch.org.

LET US GIVE THANKS

Tina Laughary

I ask God for many things, which is a good thing, according to Matthew 7:7-11 -

"Ask and it will be given to you; seek and you will find; knock and the door will be opened to you. For everyone who asks receives; the one who seeks finds; and to the one who knocks, the door will be opened. Which of you, if your son asks for bread, will give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, will give him a snake? If then, though you are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good gifts to those who ask him!"

We have a good father who wants to bless us with good things; He just wants us to ask. And so we do. We ask for safety, for healing, for provision, for wisdom and for guidance. We pray for blessings for our kids, our neighbors and our friends. We pray for the hurting, for those who are far from God. We pray for our leaders, for the politicians, for the armed services and for our nation. We pray for those who are not like us. We pray for those living across oceans, who speak different languages and have different struggles. We pray. We ask. We seek. We knock. But do we say "thank you"?

"We ask. We seek. We knock. But do we say 'thank you'?"

God is constantly answering our prayers. He stands with the broken and the hurting. He provides comfort and shelter through the storms of life. He grants protection and healing and strength to face another day in a broken world where evil is real and pain is inevitable. He stands with us.

I pray for each of my children as they leave for school each morning but do I stop to thank God when they come safely home each afternoon? I pray for safety when my husband takes off in his old car or giant bus but how often do I express my thanks when he pulls in at night? The truth is, I am ungrateful; and I have a strong suspicion that I am not the only one.

Every November, a spirit of "thankfulness" is brought to the forefront of our lives—at least it should be. This is a good thing, a needed reminder in our busy worlds to take the time to realize just how much we have to truly be thankful for. This year, however I want to take it step farther. I want to incorporate into my daily life a routine, a discipline of daily thankfulness. I am challenging myself this November to end all 30 days with a moment of prayer. A prayer of thanksgiving. I will not be praying for God to give me anything or do anything for me. I will simply be thanking Him for all He has already done. Truthfully, I do not want to stop come December 1. I am hoping to start a habit that will last forever.

"I will not be praying for God to give me anything or do anything for me. I will simply be thanking Him for all He has already done."

I teach my children to say, "thank you" not just because I want to raise polite kids. I want them to show their thanks and appreciation because I want them to become thankful people who realize just how very blessed they are. God wants us to say thank you, not just for His glory but because He knows it is good for us and He loves us. This is a discipline worth adopting. Let us give thanks.

NOT JUST DINNER

Tracy Lee Sievers

Have you taken time recently to be thankful? Really thankful. Not just for a moment to breathe and relax or for a good report from a physician or teacher, but to consider the reasons you can live a thankful life?

Most of us, if we're honest, think most about thankfulness during November because it's got the holiday we call Thanksgiving. We have people over to a big dinner and we go around the table sharing things for which we are thankful before diving into the mashed potatoes. The kind of thankfulness I'm referring to isn't only that; it's all the time.

Living a life of thankfulness is about your everyday attitude. It's about looking around and being present in the moment while finding the joy amidst it.

Paul tells us in the New Testament to be thankful in all circumstances. That's hard! In the midst of good times thankfulness is almost automatic but it's not so easy when things are difficult. How can we be thankful when the doctor gives us bad news? When the car breaks down? When a loved one is injured or indifferent? When you're fighting with your spouse? How do we find thankfulness even in those circumstances?

Like a pilot that looks to the horizon line as their point of reference, if we are continually looking to the cross, we will see reasons to be thankful in all situations. Once we see them we can praise God for them. Because of that diagnosis we can be thankful that we can create a plan of action. When the car breaks down we can be thankful that we have the opportunity to slow down a bit and build the relationship with the friend who offers us a ride when we need it. When a loved one is injured or indifferent we can be thankful for the opportunity to pray and share the love of Jesus with them. When things in your marriage aren't as smooth as you'd like them to be you can be thankful that Jesus can work in all situations.

If we are living a truly thankful life we know that even when things aren't going our way we can still trust our Savior. We can smile in the midst of our struggles and we can live a truly thankful life.

What does thankfulness look like to you? Remember, thanksgiving is not just a once-a-year dinner; it's a way of life!

REACHING "MY" UNREACHED PEOPLE

Pastor Corey Laughary

I am thankful. I am thankful for the mission Jesus gave the Church.

When a missionary goes on assignment there are many things they need to learn. Along with learning the culture of their area they also research to figure out which groups of people are unreached or least-reached by the Gospel.

Who is our most unreached people group?

It is my researched opinion that the least reached group of people in our area of the world are fathers with children still at home. I might be wrong. (And I may be overly sensitive and empathetic to this group of people because I am part of their demographic—a dad with kids at home.) But even if I am wrong, I still desire deep in my heart that fathers would turn to Jesus and live their life to honor Him.

I am excited to see fathers worshiping with their families in church. I am overjoyed when I get questions from dads about how to share their faith at home or in the workplace. And the good news is - I am having these conversations more regularly lately. This is an answer to prayer, and it is energizing to see even more reached and changed by Jesus. I am thankful to see men who are depending on Jesus to restore their lives and fill their lives with hope.

Now please don't take me the wrong way - I am not against reaching other groups of people. Seniors, moms, children, youth, you name it - we as a church want to reach out to all that we can with the good news of Jesus.

However, for me, God has put a healthy burden on my heart to pray for dads and find ways to serve them and share the good news with them. Who has God given you a burden to pray for? Is it your co-workers at work? Is it your extended family? Maybe you have a burden for your grandchildren? Or maybe for you it is moms with kids at home? How can we each take some responsibility in reaching out to someone who needs to experience life with Jesus?

I am thankful that God is using our church to reach people like me. But God keeps giving me questions to ponder: "What if I grew up here, and was not raised Christian, how would I come to know about Jesus? How is the average unchristian father in our area going to learn the basics about Jesus, the Bible and the Christian faith?"

"How then will they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how are they to believe in him of whom they have never heard? And how are they to hear without someone telling them?" Romans 10:14

Depending on Jesus,

Pastor Corey

OIKOS - "EXTENDED HOUSEHOLD"

Oikos is a Greek word meaning extended household. Pastor Tom Mercer says your Oikos is made up of the 8 to 15 people you interact with on a regular basis that God has supernaturally and strategically placed in your life—friends, family, neighbors, and co-workers. Nobody is better equipped to share the truth of Jesus with them than you.

An Oikos list is your personal "household" of relationships. Pick up and fill out one of our new Oikos Prayer Cards and start praying for the people in your Oikos to grow in their relationship with Jesus.

Already have a list—maybe you need to revisit it and add or remove people who have moved in and out of your sphere of influence.

Remember—pray for them daily.

Did you know there's an Oikos app for iPhone and Android? Search "8to15" in your app store and you'll be on your way to receiving daily reminders to pray for your Oikos!

ADOPT-A-FAMILY & CHRISTMAS FOOD VOUCHERS

This Christmas season we will be blessing one of the 37 young families who receive care and parenting classes at Palouse Care Network through the Adopt-A-Family program. We have a wish list for the family, but it's easiest if we collect funds and send a shopper to town to buy as many items on the "needs" list as possible and maybe one of their "wants" as well.

If you're interested in helping out, place your designated gift in the church offering by Dec. 3 and mark "Adopt-A-Family" on your check or giving envelope. If you love to shop for things like snow boots or baby items, let Betty Sawyer know (1bettysawyer@gmail.com). We'd love to share the shopping and gift-wrapping with others.

The church also will provide food vouchers this Christmas for families in need. If you desire to support this ministry, simply indicate "Food Vouchers" on your check or giving envelope and place it in the offering.

Thank you for your generous support of our community!
